

PRYORS HAYES GOLF CLUB / LEISURE

Turning a safety audit into practical site support

Pryors Hayes needed practical help to turn Health and Safety findings into a manageable programme of work. Employee Passport worked across the golf course, greenkeeping areas and clubhouse to build assessments and actions around the actual site.

The situation

The club combines golf, grounds maintenance, hospitality and events. Its safety arrangements needed to reflect the different activities, equipment, substances and people using those spaces. An audit identified gaps that required more detailed assessment and follow-up.

What we did

EPL inspected the course, greenkeeping compound, machinery and buggies, then followed up across the clubhouse, kitchen, bar, event areas and simulator. Site observations and photographs informed risk assessments, a COSHH portfolio and a prioritised 30/60/90-day action plan. Safe systems of work, a working fire safety plan and a signage schedule were also prepared.

What changed

The report dated 10 September records completed risk-assessment and COSHH documentation, draft safe systems of work and an organised evidence base. Managers had a clearer record of the controls, responsibilities and follow-up required. This was progress towards implementation, rather than a claim that every site action had been closed.

The follow-through

The next phase covered management acceptance and staff briefings, physical improvements, final fire verification and signage installation. Actions would remain open until the relevant evidence confirmed completion.

Pryors Hayes uses the EPL Hub. The project plan provides for approved documents, assigned actions and supporting evidence to be maintained there; completion of every upload is not claimed.
